

EV PURCHASING CO-OP DEALERSHIP INCENTIVE

Sport Chevrolet

Chevrolet is offering home charging installation to new Chevy Bolt or Bolt EUV customers. It's installation made easy! Chevrolet has appointed Qmerit to pair you with an expert electrician to install a 240-volt (NEMA 14-50) outlet & 40-amp dedicated breaker at your home. Home installations will either be 'standard' or 'non-standard,' depending on your home setup.

Standard installation is paid for in full (including permit fee) by Chevrolet when your home meets the standard requirements. In most cases, this means you live in a single-family home, have a dedicated meter, an attached garage, and available ampacity. Non-standard installation is still managed through Qmerit, but your home setup is out-of-scope for the standard installation. Chevrolet will pay up to $1,000 towards your installation and up to $250 towards your permit. Your Qmerit electrician will provide you a quote. Once your approval is confirmed, the electrician will schedule your install. Payment for the remaining balance is required upon completion of the installation.

If a home installation is not possible or not desired, Chevrolet is offering a $500 EVGo public charging credit so you can charge on the go. This is great for customers who may live in an apartment building or rental and aren't able to install a new outlet, or for customers who already have home charging installed. Note: EVgo public charging credits can be used at several other public charging stations (e.g. ChargePoint) through interoperability ("roaming") agreements.
